

Troy Lee Designs/Red Bull/KTM Riders Hill, Oldenburg, and Hoeft Ready to Take on MXGP Stars at Glen Helen

Monster Energy MXGP of USA Gets Underway Saturday with Practice & Qualifying

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (September 9, 2016) – Just a matter of hours remain until the first gate drop for the Monster Energy MXGP of USA, presented by Chaparral (USGP) at legendary Glen Helen Raceway. The entry lists for both the MXGP and MX2 classes have been released, and included in the MX2 class is the Troy Lee Designs/Red Bull/KTM trio of Justin Hill, Mitchell Oldenburg, and Justin Hoeft.

Corona-based Troy Lee Designs has been a longtime partner of Glen Helen Raceway, playing a central role in the creation of the special edition, one-of-a-kind event posters for all of the track's marquee events. Last year, the team swept the top two spots in the overall classification in MX2, with Jessy Nelson emerging victorious and Shane McElrath capturing the runner-up spot. Unfortunately, neither Nelson nor McElrath will have the opportunity to defend their results this weekend, but in their place is a talented lineup more than capable of putting the TLD KTM effort back on the podium in front of its hometown crowd.

Justin Hill's 2016 Lucas Oil Pro Motocross Championship season was limited thanks to an injury that sidelined the Oregon native for half of the season. However, he returned to action and closed out the summer in a strong way, narrowly missing out on the podium at Unadilla with a fourth-place result. He's logged many laps at Glen Helen, and has the speed to give TLD KTM back-to-back Monster Energy MXGP of USA victories.

Mitchell Oldenburg wasn't even sure if he'd have the opportunity to compete for the Troy Lee squad in the Lucas Oil Pro Motocross Championship. Things ultimately worked out in the Texas native's favor and he took advantage of the chance he was given by finishing 10th in the final 250 Class standings. Oldenburg has become the team's most reliable rider throughout the 2016 season, serving as the only member of the TLD KTM to compete in every race of both Monster Energy Supercross and Lucas Oil Pro Motocross. He has arguably more race experience than anyone else in the MX2 field and is poised for a breakout ride this weekend.

Justin Hoeft is the newest member of the team, making his professional motocross debut at Glen Helen. The California native is no stranger to adversity; fighting through some of the toughest challenges life can throw at you with a positive attitude and persistent worth ethic. The continued belief in chasing his motocross dream has led him to this point, an anticipated debut alongside the world's elite riders in front of the hometown crowd.

Tickets to the Monster Energy MXGP of USA start at just $70 for three-day access to the FINAL opportunity to see the stars of Europe in action. The event will feature two full days of on-track action, with practice and qualifying races on Saturday, September 10, setting the gate for final motos on Sunday, September 11.
