

AMERICA'S CHANCE AT THE WORLD CUP

Who's Bringing Home the World Cup?

The fight for the World Cup is on once again! Glen Helen owner Bud Feldkamp, and Youthstream President Giuseppe Luongo, resume their battle for possession of the world cup as the MXGP returns to the United States this September. After four long years, Glen Helen Raceway will be hosting the final round of the Monster Energy MXGP, thus giving the U.S. another chance to bring home the World Cup.

“Giuseppe, save on shipping and bring the cup with you” — Bud Feldkamp
With the U.S. Red Bull Factory KTM and Rockstar Energy Racing Husqvarna Teams recently confirming their riders for September's Monster Energy MXGP of the USA, Bud Feldkamp is even more confident that this is the year the World Cup will return to American soil. This is the chance of a lifetime for a motocross rider to prove to the world that they are truly the best. Representing the United States is Ryan Dungey, Justin Hill, Jessy Nelson, Shane McElrath, Andrew Short, and Justin Brayton. "I'm looking forward to one of these patriotic riders bringing the Cup home to where it belongs... the good ole' USA," said Feldkamp.

Witness the Return

At the Monster Energy MXGP of USA at Glen Helen, the future residence of the World Cup will be determined. If an American rider wins, the Cup will finally come back home to the United States. If an International rider wins, the Cup will once again remain in Europe for another year. This September, watch as our American heroes race for the ultimate title and for the rights to say that they are the best in the world! Tickets for the Final Round of the MXGP at Glen Helen are available online.
